Message from President's & Hon. Secretary's Desk

Dear members

It was a wonderful annual day. It was a great pride to honor many seniors & stalwarts of our Association. The event was graced with valuable presence of Shri Pankaj Patel, executive chairman of Zydus, Lifesciences & Padma shri Dr. J M Vyas, Vice chancellor of National Forensic Science University. We are thankful to all the organizing committee members, awardees, guests & all AMA members who attended the event & made it a huge success.

Important message to learn from all the dignitaries was to give your best in your present to make the future of our fraternity & society brighter & safe.

"Yesterday is history, tomorrow is a mystery, today is a gift of God, which is why we call it the present."

— Bill Keane

Message is loud & clear - the present is a present of God for us; shall enjoy it & shall utilize to make someone's future better.

One more development in context of these nice quotes is, the month of July was celebrated as organ donation awareness month. AMA took initiative of this noble movement with IMA GSB, Govt of Gujarat & Gujarat media club; the movement is widely supported by all the hospitals of Gujarat which are doing transplant surgeries, various NGOs & various influential personalities and organizations of society.

Rightly said anonymously,

"Don't think of organ donation as giving up part of yourself to keep a total stranger alive. It's really a total stranger giving up almost all of themselves to keep part of you alive" author unknown. So true. Donate life.

It's required not only to pledge ourselves for organ donation after life; but also to motivate others for organ donations. It's now also a high time to update ourselves for all the procedures, mind sets, formalities & empathetic attitude to get maximum numbers of donors whenever we come across the brain dead patients (as per the protocol of organ retrieval policy).

We would like to end the message with the quote of Denis Waitley

"Time and health are two precious assets that we don't recognize and appreciate until they have been depleted."

We wish all of you to have these two precious assets at the level best!!!

Exploring the Potential: Is Clinical Research a Good Career in India?

Background :

The global market size for clinical trials can hit $84.43 billion by 2030, up from $48.4 billion in 2020. The Indian pharmaceutical industry has witnessed expansive growth in the last decade. It was valued at US$ 33 billion in 2017. Currently, India is the largest provider of generic drugs globally, supplying over 50% of global demand. In 2017, Indian companies received 304 Abbreviated New Drug Application approvals from the US Food and Drug Administration. Such figures reflect an increasingly critical role of pharmaceutical physicians in the country. The huge potential raises a question for the students, physicians, or aspirants- Is clinical research a good career in India? The answer is "YES". The need for substantial talented clinical researchers will drive this growth.

- India is an emerging hub for clinical research, because of advantages of conducting clinical trials in India. Indian clinical research industry has very strong fundamentals including:

- Genetically diverse patient pool
- Vast population in need of medical treatment
- Qualified medical professionals
- Availability of required infrastructure
- Clinicians and data specialists
- Good regulatory policies

Companies work harder to retain and engage this talent in a highly competitive market. If someone is a fresher or looking to transition into clinical research, working as a clinical research physician gives a unique approach to making a real impact in people's lives.

While those with a medical background can take their career to the next level with a specialization in clinical research, even those with other specific skills can excel and make a mark for themselves in the industry. Generally, individuals completed MBBS or MD is eligible to become a clinical trial physician.

Clinical Research Career options for Physicians :

Doctors can become Principal Investigator, Medical Advisor, Drug Developer, and Regulatory Affairs Manager, Medical Writers, Clinical Research Manager, Pharmacovigilance Executive, Drug Reviewer and more. The clinical trial industry offers a competitive salary at the starting point, and there is plenty of room for career progression toward a high-paying role.

Role and profile of Physicians :

Pharmaceutical physicians support drug development in various capacities and contribute tremendously to the healthcare system. However, there is lack of substantial information on career progression of pharmaceutical physicians in India.

Pharmaceutical physicians have a long legacy in India. However, Over the years, their role has expanded into domains such as regulatory affairs, pharma covigilance, global clinical development, and strategic planning. Currently, they work in different environments, including regulatory agencies, contract research organizations (CROs), drug companies etc., and have a tremendous responsibility of ensuring safety and the efficacy of new potential treatments.

Of late, many physicians from various subspecialties have successfully transitioned into the pharmaceutical industry. However, most of our current understanding about their role/s are derived from peer-experiences that can be heavily biased. More often, the role has even been misinterpreted due to the aspect of commercialization support that such profiles demand. Accordingly, one study was designed to analyze the working profile of pharmaceutical physicians in India. The study provided useful insights about their career progression and could serve as a useful guide for junior academics contemplating career-options in the pharmaceutical industry.

Following was the trend of jobs observed in the pharmaceutical industry for the physicians.

Challenges :

Many recruiters opine that technical training alone is deficient in many ways, and actual hands-on clinical trial experience is necessary for entry-level hires in the pharmaceutical industry. Students can benefit from good industry-academia collaboration in the form of industry apprenticeship or sub-investigator roles in sponsored clinical studies. Hence, industry apprenticeship is a highly recommended training option.

There are obvious challenges perceived at workplace. Diversified work and difficult colleagues were top concerns among the physicians. However, there are studies indicating that working in diverse fields, both culturally and professionally can impact career growth positively. Since medical learning is heavily science focused, young physicians hardly inculcate decent interpersonal skills. Moreover, not many organizations today offer training on soft skills to its employees. This could be an area of improvement for young students aspiring to be pharmaceutical physicians, through indoctrination of good interpersonal skills.

Career opportunities in the pharmaceutical sector have prompted many physicians to take up specialization in subjects like Pharmacology, in place of clinical specialties. However, except few premier institutes, hands-on exposure to activities related to pharmaceutical drug development is hardly encouraged. Hence, it is believed that there is a need for a dedicated specialty curriculum in Pharmaceutical Medicine in India. In theory, this can be achieved by modifying the existing curriculum and by introducing elective courses that focus on aspects relevant to pharmaceutical drug development.

This clearly reflects the need for a specialized curriculum in Pharmaceutical Medicine in India. It is already a listed medical specialty in the UK, Ireland, Switzerland, and Mexico. In the UK, the Faculty of Pharmaceutical Medicine of the Royal College of Physicians provides accreditation for the specialty. As a medical discipline, pharmaceutical medicine has a recognized international syllabus, training courses with examinations and qualifications. In many ways, introductory basics of pharmaceutical medicine can be found in Pharmacology, which was the mostcommon specialty noted among physicians.

Summary :

A huge population combined with the significant medical workforce and the cost-benefits has started to impact the Major Pharmaceutical and Clinical Research Organisation(CROs) to setup clinical research facilities in India. Best example for this is one of the multinational company - Novartis recent decision to shift all their outsourcing activities to Hyderabad. On the other hand, the frequency of a broad range of diseases, India is being considered as the perfect location for clinical research. Clinical Research career for doctors can be a promising career in the industry. The literature data also underlines the continuing need to improve clinical research capabilitiesand addresses physician reluctance in considering careers in pharmaceutical medicine.
